Barum class learning

In English, we have started our new sequence, poetry. Our new text is 'Tell me a Dragon' by Jackie Morris. We have had some dragon eggs in class and have been very excited for them to hatch, the hatched dragons have been enjoying sitting on our tables watching us writing. We have read some of the poems from the book, explored the vocabulary, created story maps for some of the poems and practised writing noun phrases to describe our dragons.

This week in Maths, we have started working on multiplication; we have recognised and described equal groups, written repeated addition and multiplication equations to match different images of equal groups and bar models.

In Art, we have been learning about 'Pop Art'. We will be creating our own artwork inspired by Roy Lichtenstein. This week we have looked at some of his work and discussed our likes and dislikes, we have enjoyed working on a collaborative piece of art by doodling different types of flying machines and then adding colour and pattern.

Home Learning

In addition to our multiplication and division unit, we are also learning about 'Time'. Have a go at the lessons set on MyMaths, 'Starting to tell the time' and 'Comparing time'.

Information

This term our PE day will be on Monday and we will be taking part in Forest school on Tuesdays.

Reading

Well done to those of you who managed to read 5 times this week! We aim to get the recording sheets stuck in next week, please keep writing in the book to let us know when your child reads at home.
